TREATMENT OF THE CASE. 33 a saline draught at night; and in each of these draughts a minim dose of hydrocyanic acid; an inhalation with a weak solution of iodine; a diet regulated as to quality, and quantity, and the hours of refreshment; but I did not debar him from animal food, nor from two glasses of wine at dinner, a little diluted with water. I changed his hour of dining from seven to two, and directed him to take a supper of gruel and milk, or bread and milk, with the addition of a fresh egg boiled, when his appetite was importunate. Such was the extraordinary irritability of the cough, attended with a harassing tickling in the trachea, that I found it expedient to add some conium to the iodine; and this had the effect of softening the inhalation remarkably, to use the language...
