Excerpt: . . . 11 Let me cite just one example. The dry-cask storage containers that will carry this waste are tested to withstand submersion in water. I havent found any tests, submersion tests, for these casks at anything like the depths of the Santa Barbara Channel where the barges would travel. So what happens if there is an accident there and a number of these concrete containers find themselves at the bottom of the channel, a channel which, by the way, is prone to earthquakes, as is Diablo Canyon Will they be able to withstand the depths Can we retrieve them And how safe would the channel and the surrounding area be This scenario could be played out in different forms in congressional districts across this country, only maybe it is an accident in a town or on the...
